Archdiocesan Vocation Office of San Antonio

The universal call to a life of holiness and service is made by God to all the baptized: single, married, ordained, and consecrated. While the Archdiocesan Vocation Office values all vocations, it is commissioned to provide resources and discernment opportunities that promote and cultivate vocations to ordained and consecrated life, especially diocesan vocations.

The Vocation Office strives to be sensitive to the cultural milieu of the Archdiocese on every level of its service to individuals, parishes, schools, campuses and church organizations. Its ministry is strengthened by the collaboration it shares with the Vocation Committee, priests, religious and monastic congregations and lay vocation promoters who serve in the Archdiocese and with pastors and lay leaders who keep contact with potential candidates.

The Vocation Office is a member of the Regional and National Conference for Diocesan Vocation Directors (NCDVD), and the National Religious Vocation Conference (NRVC), which provide professional training and resources.

Vocation Committee Identity Statement

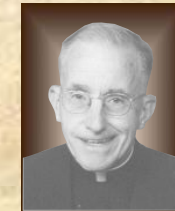

We are vocation directors and contact persons who network with each other and with the Archdiocesan Vocation Office. Together we work in the cultivation, identification, promotion and discernment of vocations to consecrated life and to ordained ministries.
